THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

VOL. XXII.

MR. VEST EXPLAINS

of the Free Coinage of Silver.

ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY MORNING, JANUARY 13, 1891.

THAT MR. CLEVELAND HAS NOT BECOME A SILVER MAN, BUT HAS MERELY SOFTENED A LITTLE And Now Agrees Not to Get Mad when He Hears Other People Talking in Favor

WASHINGTON, January 12 .- [Special.]-Senator Vest, of Missouri, comes out in a statement in The Sun today, supplementary to his recent talk on Mr. Cleveland's silver converted to free coinage, but "he has become more tolerant of the judgment of others on this subject. I think today that Mr. Cleveland is willing to admit that there are plaus-ible, if not valid, arguments for free coinage, that there are honest men in his own party who believe in the free coinage of silver. That is, perhaps, the extent of the conversion of ch so much has been said."

"What the west wants," the Missouri senator says, "is free coinage of silver, and it will not be satisfied with anything else." Then he says:

"I cannot understand the attitude of the reblican party. It is playing with fire, d one of these days it will be burned. The first thing they know the farmers will be sending men here to pass the Stanford land loan bill. Then there will be trouble. Tell the farmer that it means a loan to him of onehalf the assessed value of his farm at 2 per cent, and that will mean the distribution of money among the debtor class all over the country, and millions will quickly grasp at the to cry out and to tell them that this propo would unsettle all values. They would reply that the man who offered this scheme had accumulated, by business taot and agacity, a hugh fortune. They would say: "What have you been doing all these years—you who know so much about the financial ques-Stanford has millions to your thousands Put Stanford at the head of a Farmers' Alliance ticket for the presidency, on the plat-form of that land-loan bill, and there will be music in the air. I do not believe in Sta ford's plan. But a great many people do. Our republican friends had better take free coin-

All the speeches made in the senate today were in favor of the Stewart free coinage ent to the financial bill. It is now colntely certain that free coinage will pass

The speech made by Senator Berry, of Arkansas, in favor of free coinage today, was one of the strongest and most practical argu-ments heard on this question since the debate ed. He stated that the condition of this country was such that financial relief was an absolute necessity, and the free coinage of silver was the only practical measure that could adopted just now to give the country e needed relief. He thought it was time the farmer received consideration at the time the larmer received consideration at the hands of congress. He was opposed to the subtreasury, which had been advocated by the farmers but favored all the relief that could be given them by practical legislation.

In concluding his remarks he said that if coinage, the next one, which is to be demo cratic, will, and then if the president refused to sign the bill, the country would elect a man dent who would sign a free coinage sure, but no man, whether he be dem crat or republican, could ever be elected presiwho does not favor and unlimited coinage One of the senators who was sitting next to the Arkansan, said when he sat down: "That's what it does," replied Senator rry, "if he will not come out in favor of es coinage."

The Subsidy Lobby The presence in Washington of a powerful boby in the interest of the subsidy shipping bill now pending in the house has served to recall the disgraceful and scandalous circumstances attending the passage of a similar subsidy bill in 1873.

In the investigation which followed on the heels of the approprtation of $5,000,000 for additional Pacific mail subsidy, it was proved that the gigantic sum of over $890,000 was distributed to aid the passage of that bill. The present bill, vague in its terms, it is estimated will cost in the next ten years from $35,000,000 ,000,000. If the same proportion of the gross sum were expended to secure the pas-age of the present bill that was used in the ase of its forerunner, the Pacific mail subsidy, eneficiaries of this act could afford to nd from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 in order to obtain the remaining portion.

In the report of the Pacific mail investigation the amount of money used in the lobby was absolutely appalling. The whole nefarious cheme to corrupt the lower house of conrgess unfolded in the letters which passed beween A. B. Stockwell, the president of the ompany, and R. B. Irwin, the chief of the stationed here. The investigation was hadly crippled by the flight of Irwin, Stocksell and other principals in the conspiracy but nevertheless the leading facts were brought out. On a single occasion $500,000 in checks a grand establishment in this city at which his oyal entertainments cost, according to his ex-Pense account, during a few months, $40,000. The committee found that $890,000 in all was rsed, but only $703,000 of it could be defialtely located.

Quay's New Bill.

Senator Mathew Stanley Quay took a novel method this afternoon of getting out what little life remained in the force bill. He introduced a substitute for the Hoar bill, which goes to lengths never dreamed of by the most ardent of the force bill fanatics. It authorizes the president, at his discretion, to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and to call out the army, navy and marine band, if necessary, to enforce the provision of the act. Quay is against the present force bill, because, for one reason, he believes it is a sugar and water affair which will be entirely inadequate for the urposes for which it is assigned. He thereore offered this bill, concerning the effective ness of which there can be no doubt, on the principle that the party should have the game fit is going to have the name. However it is not believed that Quay wants his bill passed. He merely hopes to create another split in the republican ranks, and add another complicating feature to the situation. As an evidence of the popular interest in the passage of a force bill, it might be noted in this connection, that since the opening of the agita-tion for a measure of this character, there have been presented to the house and senate 1,707 petitions in this respect and just exactly nine of them have been in favor of the passage of the bill.

THE DAY IN THE SENATE. The Silver Bill Continues to Be the Sub

Washington, January 12.—In the senate among the documents presented and referred, were very many petitions and memorials, some for and some against the Conger lard bill; also two petitions in favor of the copyright

At 2 o'clock the finance bill came up, Mr. Allen, of Washington, being entitled to the

Mr. Platt made an explanation as to why he had not, according to notice which he gave last Friday, moved to take up the bill relating to the copyright. He had supposed that there would be no urgency of debate on the finance bill, but the senator in charge of that bill was anxious that debate upon it should be continued. At the very first opportunity after the finance bill was disposed of, he (Platt) would ask the senate to consider the copyright bill.

Mr. Paddock gave notice, on the other hand that without regard to the copyright bill, or any other bill, he would, at the first opportunity, ask the senate to take up the pure food bill.

Mr. Allen addressed the senate in advocacy of Mr. Stewart's amendment to the finance bill. The world at large, he said, had seen fit to adopt, with a few exceptions, the double standard of gold and silver, and had, through centuries, builded up a financial structure upon it. It was impossible, at this late day, to call a halt in the march. Silver today represented about one-half of the world's supply of money, and one-half of its value. If silver were robbed of its money function and converted into a mere commodity, it would become practically worthless, and half the value of the world's assets would be extracted, and would be transferred to and swallowed up in the remaining metal in order to double its monetary powers. Such a crime would be so MR ALLEN TALKS. monetary powers. Such a crime would be so gross, so stupendous, so cruel and ruinous that its contemplation excited universal revulsion and universal resistance.

Mr. Berry addressed the senate in support of Mr. Stewart's amendment. He would vote for it, he said, understanding that it provided for placed silver, in all aspects, in regard to the right of coinage and the right to be used as right of coinage and the right to be used as money, on an equality with gold, at the rate fixed by law. For himself, he said frankly that one of the strongest reasons that induced him to support the amendment was in the hope and belief that the free coinage of silver would enable the mortgage-cursed people of the south and the west to discharge their obligations and to rid their homes from mortgages that weighed them down, with less labor, less toil, and with a much smaller amount of cotton, wheat and corn than it would now require, and if it were true that the money paid to holders of govern-ment bonds would purchase less of these prod-ncts than it now did, they would still receive far more than they had contracted to receive, and much more than justice demanded. He would not vote for the issue of additional bonds—the purpose of which was to continue in existence the national banks. He believed that the national banks had been a curse to the country and that the sooner they disappeared the better.

Mr. Cockrell also made an argument in favor of the amendment which was simply, he said, a proposition for the free coinage of silver and the restoration of silver to all monetary functions. far more than they had contracted to receive

Mr. Allison took the floor and the bill was laid aside. After a short executive session the senate adjourned. THE BEHRING SEA DISPUTE.

The Judicial Determination of the Controversy Between United States and England.

Washington, January 12.—The Behring sea scaleries controversy came up in the United States supreme court today on a motion which has in view the judicial determination of the dispute between the United States and Great Britain over the scal fisheries. Joseph H. Choate, in behalf of Thomas Henry Cooper, owner and claimant of the British schooner W. P. Sayward, which was seized in the waters of the Behring sea by the revenue cutter Rush, petitioned the court for leave to file a petition for a writ of prohibition to be directed to the judge of the district court of the United States in and for the termination and sale of the vessel. The object is to have the court take up and pass upon the question of the jurisdiction over these waters. The chief justice made an order giving the attorney general two weeks to file an answer to the brief of Choate, giving reasons, if any, why the petition should not be granted. The court is informed that Sir John Thompson, her majesty's attorney general, of Canada, authorizes this motion to be presented with the knowledge and approval of the imperial government of Great-Britain. The Judicial Determination of the Contro

Modifying the Interstate Bill Modifying the Interstate Bill.

Washindron, January 12.—The senate interstate commerce committee today practically agreed to report favorably the senate bill modifying the anti-pooling section of the interstate commerce act so as to permit the limited pooling of traffic. The phraseology of the bill has not been definitely determined on, but it is expected that at the next meeting, on Wednesday, all the details will be fixed and the report ordered to be made to the senate.

Massintoffon, January 12.—Secretary Windom has sent to the house of representatives a letter transmitting estimates of appropriations aggregating $6,074,063, required by the various departments of the government to complete the service of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1891, for prior years. The three largest items are: For the department of justice, $1,551,088; the navy department, $1,507,867; treasury, $926,194.

MILLER IS RAMPANT.

DELIVERS A VERY BITTER TIRADE.

In Which He Accuses the People of His State of the Premeditated Murder

Washington, January 12.—[Special.]—The negro Miller, who was given Colonel Elliott's seat in the house last session, by Tom Reed, and who now represents the seventh district of South Carolina, has ruined his chances of ever getting the seat again.

Today he made one of the bitterest and most entrageous attacks upon the people of his district, and of the entire south, ever heard in the halls of congress. He said what the southern negro wanted was protection to his life and property, and sought to leave the impression upon the minds of his northern hearers that the southern whites go out and kill a negro every morning before breakfast. He was particularly bitter in his attacks upon his own state. Since his speech it is certain that he will find no one in the next house who will vote to give him the seat he will contest. Miller does not resemble a negro in any respect. He is white, his hair is perfectly straight, and, indeed, he is quite a distinguished-looking man. He is perhaps nine-tenths white. E. W. B.

Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, offered an amendment to the Dockery resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee of five members to inquire into all the facts and circumstances connected with the silver pools in which the senators and representatives are alleged to be interested; also as to the alleged purchase and sale of silver prior to and since the passage of the act of July 14, 1890, including the names of persons purchasing or selling the same and who are owners of twelve million ounces of silver bullion which the United States is now asked to purchase.

Mr. Rogers's amendment was agreed to, and the resolution as amended was agreed to. THE APPROPRIATION BILL.

The house then, after some sparring as to the limitation of the general debate, which was finally fixed at one hour and a half, went into a committee of the whole for further conideration of army appropriations.

MR. STONE ATTACKS THE FORCE BILL.

Mr. Stone, of Missouri, taking advantage of the wide scope allowed to general debate, entered upon a general denunciation of the elec-tions bill, which he denominated a menace to tions bill, which he denominated a menace to the integrity of the states and to the liberties of the people. It was an intolerable imper-tinence on the part of those who proposed it, and of sniveling hypocrisy on the part of those by whom it was urged. It was treason dis-guised and brought here in the hands and under the protection of hypocrisy. He referred to Lodge, of Massachusetts, as representing the Oscar Wilde type of statesmanship, and to Senator Hoar as a maternal masculinity who Oscar Wilde type of statesmanship, and to Senator Hoar as a maternal masculinity who represented the New England Pecksniff. He was heartily tired and sick of this eternal cant was hearth, and hypocrisy.

The debate became entirely political, and the appropriation bill was lost sight of. Those who participated in it were Messrs. Grosvenor, Enlos. Greenhage of Massachusetts. not complain that they were not given office. What they suffered from was the infernal lynch law; next they suffered from the little petty system of justices that robbed them of the results of their toil from day to day; third, they worked for their taskmasters, and they were paid as their taskmasters pleased, for the courts were so constructed that negroes had no rights. Talk about calling the elections bill a force the results of their toll from day to day; third, they worked for their taskmasters, and they were paid as their taskmasters pleased, for the courts were so constructed that negroes had no rights. Talk about calling the elections bill a force bill! Did not the gentleman from the south say that it was a white man's right to rule and to control elections; and that if they could not control them by a majority vote they would control them by force and fraud. The negroes wanted an election law that would compet the people of the south to regard the rights of the negro and white man alike, and to count their votes as cast, and which would result in the wishes of the people being expressed here by duly elected representatives. What negroes needed was not so much offices as it was protection at home in their rights, chief among which was their right to live. If they got an along tions bill, South Carolina would have six or seven republicans here. The committee then proceeded to the con-sideration of the appropriation bill by sections. Mr. Bland offered an amendment providing that nothing of the appropriation for the pay of the army shall be paid to officers detailed to state colleges and institutions. This was ruled out on a point of order, from which ruling Mr. Bland appealed, pending which the committee rose and the house adjourned.

THEY WERE ALL GUILTY,

And Foraker and Halstead Must Bear Their Part.

Washington, January 12.—The report of the house ballot box committee, which last session made an extensive investigation into Ohio political affairs, in connection with the alleged subscriptions by members of congress of stock in a patent ballot box, was today presented by Mr. Mason, of Hilpois, chairman of the investigating committee of five. P. P. Elder will be chosen speaker by acelamation. Aside from the internal dissensions in the alliance camp over the McGrath-Turner patent ballot box, was today presented by Mr. Mason, of Illinois, chairman of the investigating committee of five.

The main report, which simply reviews the evidence and reports the findings of the committee with reference to the persons concerned in the ballot box contract forgery, is signed by all the members.

The committee find that the ballot box contract was prepared by Richard G. Wood; that the signatures were forged; that none of the persons named in the contract had any improper interest in the ballot box; that Wood uttered forgery to procure Governor Foraker's recommendation for appointment to office; that Foraker and Halstead added in uttering it by exhibiting the paper and by publishing it, but that neither Foraker nor Halstead knew that it was a forgery.

All the members of the committee, except the chairman, in an additional finding, hold that a careful scrutiny of the paper must have shown its false character, and that the high station of the persons involved should have suggested verification, as the evidence was near at hand. Chairman Mason disagrees on this point.

THEY WILL STAND BY GLADSTONE, The Liberals Were Never More United Than They Now Are.

In reply to this Mr. Gladstone telegraphs as followed.

"Parnell's assertion is untrue. McCarthy told me that he had a manifesto, but he did not describe its contents."

Sir William Vern an Harcourt has written a letter for publication, in which he says that the statement published in the London tory newspapers, as to dissensions among the leaders of the liberal party, are not based on fact.

He says that the liberals need feel no uneasiness, as Gladstone's colleagues continue to act with confidence in their chief, and cordial co-operation with each other.

McCarthy denies the charge that differences arose at the Boulogne conference. He says that the statement that the McCarthyltes demanded O'Brien's unqualified support of their leader, and O'Brien repelled their demand, thus leaving a loophole for Parnell's return, is a pure invention.

The unionist reliance, he says, is based upon three heads, that Gladstone will soon die; that he will immediately retire and that his colleagues will desert him. But their expectance will be disappointed. Gladstone was never in better health, and has no thought of retiring, and his colleagues and party were never more resolved to support him. NEWS FOR INGALLS

FROM THE ERSTWHILE "BLEED-ING" BTATE,

WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS DOING. The Effect of the Turner Letter-It Does the

Republicans No Good-The Pros and Cons in the Senatorial Race. TOPEKA, Kansas, January 12.-[Special.]-All the members of the legislature have arrived and with them a lobby which has crowded the capacity of all the hotels of the city. There is little interest in the organization of the house, as ex-Lieutenant Governor matter, the United States senatorship engages the attention of everybody.

While the republicans hoped the Turner letter would frustrate and divide the alliance forces, and allow them to re-elect Ingalis, it will not have that result. The leaders do not intend that such republican firebrands shall disorganize their forces. Among all the alliance members present there seems to be a determination to defeat Ingalls. They have come here with that end in view, and it is safe to predict that there will be very little, if any, legislation before the 27th instant, the day a senator is elected by a joint ballot of both houses.

The republican managers are working industriously for Ingalls, but with little success They are unable to approach the alliancen and they are eved with suspicion when the attempt to engage in conversation with them. The republicans have their headquarters open constantly, but the alliance members never go there. The alliance headquarters are at the National hotel, where the members and lobbyists throng in great numbers. All the candidates for senator are quartered there and the rooms of P. P. Elder, J. F. Willits

Willits, it is conceded, is the leading candidate, but Elder is gaining strength rapidly and it is believed he will go into the fight with thirty-five votes. If he does he will be-come a formidable candidate, and it is certain that either Willits, Elder or Peffer will be named by the alliance senatorial caucus. Judge Peffer's strength is with the ex-repub licans in the alliance. While he will not have all of them, he will have enough to become a dangerous competitor to Willits and Elder. Willits will get the democraticalliance votes and a few ex-republicans, while Elder will command all the union labor, greenback and Knights of Labor support, with a sprinkling from other classes. General Rice is on the ground making a hard fight for Ingalis's seat, but he will have very little support. He'threw away every chance he ever had when he called a national third party caucus without authority. He will not be able to muster more than a half dozen votes. In case of a failure to agree upon either Willits, Peffer or Elder, Jerry Simpson will loom up as an available compromise candidate, and should his name be presented at the proper time, would go through with a whoop. Jerry says he is not a candidate, but he acus like one. He pays a great deal of attention to the members as they arrive, and is becoming s general favorite among them.

It is not thought that much legislation will be effected. Every new member has his pockets full of local bills in their crude condition, and it is thought that by the time fifty da's have rolled round they will have become disgusted with statesmanship and be quite

in Spain. MADRID, January 12 .- The latest informa ion given out by police officials, according to dispatches received from Olot, is to the effect that the man arrested on suspicion of being the murderer of General Seliverskoff is really Padlewski. The prisoner is said to corresp in appearance exactly with the description of the murderer given out by the French dete the murderer given out by the French detectives. It is also said that the man arrested admits he committed the murder, adding that it was for a "political object." He says he failed in his plan to embark for the United. States, at Barcelons, owing to the passport regulations being so strictly, enforced at that port. Consequently, the prisoner says, he returned to Olot because he thought he would be safer there, owing to the absence of railway communication with that town. Padlewski declares that the killing of General Seliverskoff was not a crime. "Not criminal murder," but a political act. He claims he was betrayed to the police by a customs offcer who represented himself as being a member of the secret society. The prisoner is perfectly calm and collected.

During the morning a number of bucks and squaws from the hostile camp arrived on horseback and in wagons in all stages of dilapidation.
The arrivals, however, were not as numerous as have been expected. The main body of the indians still remain near the mission.

As the refugees or visitors reached the outposts
they were deprived of their arms by the guards.
The willy hostiles, however, daylayed only a few weapons, and these were later returned them when the owners went back to the hostile camp.
It is not at all improbable that many of the bucks had arms concealed about their persons.
Up to midday the chiefs mentioned inst night,
who were expected to hold a big talk with General Miles, had not made their appearance, but shortly after noon it was discovered that the hostiles had made a rapid advance, and about 1,000 of them of pickets spread with rapidity through the camp of Indians.

Immediately bundreds of squaws and children gathered in the vicinity of the headquarters, whence a view of the bluffs beyond, where the hostiles were stationed, could be obtained.

They waited patiently, however, for their brothers, lovers and husbands to appear, but as evening drew on, and their devotion was not rewarded, they gradually retired to their tepees.

Today Colonel Henry, who was expected with his four troops of the Ninth Cavalry, to reach the agency in company with Colonel Wheston and his command, was ordered to White Clay to follow in the neighborhood of General Brooke, whose headquarters are established with Colonel Sanford's command.

The latter is now within a few miles of the Indians and tomorrow will press them more closely, unless in the meantime, they shall have gone into camp within the agency.

At this writing there is no certainty as to what the indians will do. General Miles nimeelf is in doubt as to what to expect. They may, he says, get to within gunshot of the agency and their break away to camp which they have just abandoned.

ATLANTA ENTERPRISE

In South Georgia-What Major A. J. Orme of Atlanta, Is Doing in Baker County. The Albany News and Advertiser has the following from Hon. T. W. Fleming, county school commissioner of Baker county, concerning the interest of Major A. J. Orme, of Ating the interest of Major A. J. Orme, of Atlanta, in that county:

NewTon, Ga., January 3, 1890.—Gentlemen:
During the past month, in my rounds among the public schools, I chanced to spend a day and night with my old friend, Mr. G. F. King, whom I have known from his boyhood. He is now acting as agent for Major A. J. Ormes, of Atlanta, for his extensive landed interest in southwest Georgia, principally in Baker and Miller counties.

While at Mr. King's he took me to "Orme's chapel," just then about completed, and intended for school purposes on week days and for religious meeting on Sabbaths.

And now gentlemen, to say I was pleased, would meeting on Sabbaths.

And now gentlemen, to say I was pleased, would be doing injustice to Baker county's benefactors. In fact I was charmed, and feit that I would go into cestasies, as the sight was so strange, to see such a schoolhouse in the pincy woods of this county! Would that there were forty just such school buildings in this county; then indeed would we, who have the education of the poor at heart, take courage and press forward and onward in the good cause of education and norals.

Orme's chapel would be an ornament to any community, and would even grace a fashionable orme'st chapel would be an ornament to any community, and would even grace a fashionable village.

The design, the size, the work and finish are all first-class, and reflect great praise on the liberal projectors, Major Orme, of Atlanta, and Mr. King, of this country.

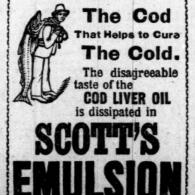

Orme's chapel is 25x40 feet, chapel proper 25x22 feet, with vestibule 8x17 feet; also an 8x8 foot ante-room under the steeple, and will be used by the pupils as a place for books, lunch baskets, hats, bonnets, etc., in week days, and on Sundays for the mothers in Israel to take their little nursing babes, when hunger causes them to yeil and disturb the preacher. Mr. Orme's lands were known in ante-bellum times as the Jones place, and Mr. King, who is our county surveyor, showed me an accurate plat, showing his surveys and his subdivisions into sixty-two and one-half acre lots.

These smail farms of sixty-two and one-half acres each are not on the market, and cannot be bought for any price, but are for rent, and Mr. King says men of limited means could not do better than make their homes in so favorable a location. Lands have good clay subsoil, water good, and as healthy a place as there is in Georgia. A good two-room framed house will be built on each of these small lots, with plazza in front and kitchen in rear; and when a sufficient number of renters are esttled to warrant a further expinditure of funds, a store and postoffice will spring into existence; also an artesian well will be put down with pipes running to each dwelling house.

There are now quite a number of good, temperate, and intelligent farmers who have recently bought from Major Orme and from other persons in the neighborhood, and Mr. King reports to me that it will be, strictly speaking a white man's settlement, as the darkies have already made their cxit. The patrons of the school tell me the school will open with twenty-six pupils of school age, and I consider this a good beginning, and the new comers should be encouraged by all who have an interest in public schools.

A FAMILY MADE HAPPY.

A Most Remarkable Cure After All Knows Means Had Failed.

Something over a month ago an old lady was lying on a sick-bed, given up to die by physicians and her family. The neighbors tient. All treatment was discontinued, in fact the patient was too weak to take medi. cine. Every half hour a paroxysm of couch ing and strangling would come on, and seemed to be so severe that it would take who was sitting near by knew something of the virtues of Royal Germetner, and after one of the severe paroxysms asked the privilege of giving a dose. As the doctors had given up the case, the request was granted and the Germetuer was given. No paroxysm of coughing and strangling followed. On the next day the patient began to talk audibly while she could not speak above a whisper when she took the first dose. She continued to improve and now the cough has disappeared. Besides she is m lieved of rheumatism of fifteen years' standing and of a severe indigestion. She can eat anything she wishes without incom venience, suffers no pain, and says that her cure is something that she never expected and is like a miracle. Her daughter, who reports the facts, says that the statement cannot be made too strong. She continue the use of Germetuer, and continues to im-

In addition to this, another cure in the same family has been effected.

I and my family certify to the above facts as to the health of Mrs. Martin, and the good effects of the medicine.

EVERY CHILD "LOANS" A DOLLAR EACH

NOVEL RIVAL OF THE LOUISIANA LOTTERY COMPANY.

Chances to Win $60,000 Sold for a Song-It Has Been Running for Twenty-one Months.

From the New York World.

Here is a new scheme to evade the lottery aws, and it is practised here in New York in the face and under the eyes of the police, the government detectives and Postmaster Wana-

You pay one dollar and apply for a loan of money and if you are lucky you may obtain a "loan" of from $10,000 to $5. But, according to all that a reporter for the World has as yet been able to learn, a man lucky enough to obtain a loan has not yet been found.

Like many other schemes resulting in wealth to the schemers, this one found birth in California. But the lottery has an agency in New York and is preparing to do business on an ex-

If the managers of the Louisiana Lottery ompany had pursued the tactics adopted by the company of California speculators, they would probably have been successful in their attempt to obtain a renewal of their charter. If John A. Morris and his associates had been as crafty as "Sharon" and company they could still dispose of lottery tickets in this city without molestation by the authorities.

For twenty-one months a lottery company, organized in California, has been operated under a novel system, and as it had offices in all the principal cities and had numerous "soliciting agents" the sales of tickets have been large and the treasury of the company filled with the dollars of the dupes.

This lottery is operated under the title of "The Guaranty Loan and Trust Co."

Drawings take place monthly under the Drawings take place monthly under the name of "loans," or at least a circular is issued giving what are alleged to be drawings, and giving in detail the numbers of tickets said 'to have been successful in obtaining "loans." The aggregate of these loans is $60,000 a month. The first number out of the wheel is entitled to the capital prize, $10,000; the second to $6,000 and the third to $3,000. the second to $5,000 and the third to $3,000. There are also five loans of $500 each, six of $250 each, and so on down to 1,000 at $5 each, there being a total of $,000 possible chances of success, according to the scheme. Inouiry among a number of men, in this city who have among a number of men, in this city who have bought tickets, failed to show that any of them had ever been among the 4,000 winners, and, as one man remarked:

NO PRIZE WINNERS FOUND.

"I don't know that only unsold tickets draw prizes, but I never drew a prize and I don't know any one who has."

When asked by a World reporter why he bought tickets when he had no faith in the concern, the man replied: "Oh! the tickets are cheap and it may strike me some day." The main office of this novel lottery company are on Market, McAllister and Jones streets, San Francisco, and there the application for tickets may be sent, as the drawing list shows, "by mail and express. All appli-cations must be accompanied with our charge of one dollar." of one dollar."

In this city the company is represented by "Sharon & Co," at No. 712 Broadway. By the sub-agents and soliciting agents applicants for loans are impressed with the fact that Mr. "Sharon" is a son of the late Senator Sharon, of California, who won wealth as a mine operator. The assertion that Sharon, of the lottery firm, is related to the former senator is

Some of the agents, however, have made a Some of the agents, however, have made a study of the Sharon family history. They can tell how the scandal originated in 1883, when Sarah Althea Hill brought suit for divorce from Senator William Sharon, and how in 1884 she obtained a decree; how subsequently Sharon died and Sarah married her lawyer, Judge Terry, and how later Judge Terry was shot and killed for making an attack on Justice Field.

"Solieiting agents" work on a commission.

'Soliciting agents' work on a commission "Soliciting agents" work on a commission. They make money fast and are liberal. They receive 15 cents for each ticket they sell, and for every twenty tickets sold they are given a drawing. The probabilities are that the agents' drawings represent all the prize-money distributed. A "soliciting agent" engages subagents, and he pays them a small commission. As the "drawings" take place on the 20th of each month agents must make return of money or tickets on the 18th. If an agent fails to do so his tickets are declared void and innocent vichis tickets are declared void and innocent victims have no possible chance of obtaining a "loan." One of the most prominent "soliciting agents" in this city, is a short, stocky man with red hair, who calls himself P. J. Hart. He frequents hotels and other popular resorts, and his sales of tickets are large. He is always willing to make a man a sub-agent, and is willing at all times to discuss the scheme of running a lottery as a "Guaranty Loan and Trust company."

SCENE IN "SHARON'S" OFFICE.

The office of "Sharon & Co," the New York representatives of the "Guaranty Loan & Trust company." at No. 712 Broadway, are on the first floor of the building, in the rear. A visitor, upon reaching the head of the first flight of stairs is confronted with a white-painted glass door, with a black letter inscription, "Sharon & Co." Entering the door he finds a high desk, with a wire screen, and back in the corner a small, square flat-topped desk, in the corner a small, square flat-topped desk. in the corner a small, square flat-topped desk.
On neither desk is there a book of accounts or other evidence of business being done. The rooms are furnished meagrely, and give the impression that if the firm moved in a hurry, without their furniture, they would not be made out of neckets.

When a World reporter called a few days

Then he handed the reporter a card three inches by two and a half, on which was printed the following:

The reporter then asked when the full list would arrive and was told it was "expected in a few days."
"Well, I want to get another ticket," said the reporter, and he took some money from his

"We can't sell them in the office," was the cautious reply. "You will have to get them of the agents." Then, as if seeking an excuse to obtain the reporter's money, "Sharon" asked: "Who sent you here?"

"Hart," was the prompt reply.
"Oh! that's all right then," said "Sharon. "Step out into the hall for a moment and I'll fix you up."

The reporter went out into the hallway, where a moment later he was joined by Sharon's partner, who would not give his name but said, "I am the company." He drew from his pocket an envelope containing about twenty tickets and said:

"Oh, no!" was the reply. "One number is as lucky as another so far as I am concerned," and he selected one, handing a two doilar bill to the company."

The Augusta Cotton Festival.

Augusta is well named the Electric City. While its antiquity gives it interest and beauty that is not merely physical, the energy and activity of its people have been nonstrated in every channel of trade and business, and in every department of progress. It has forged ahead of Atlanta in the matter of rapid transit. The street car mule has been abolished, and the urban, as well as the suburban, lines of transportation are as perfect as the spirit of progress can

In the midst of this active development Angusta reaches out a hospitable hand to the people around about, and invites them to join with her in the cotton festival, which has been arranged for the 20th of the present month and three succeeding days. On the 20th King Cotton, the original monarch of all he surveys, is to be escorted into the city. On the 21st there is to be trades' display and procession, which will be of the most elaborate character. On the 22d there will be a carnival pageant, unique in its character and attractions, and on the evening of the 23d the grand carnival ball will take place, and will close a festival of wonderful beauty and significance. It will be a success in every respect. It has behind it the energy, the prosperity and the hospitality of a typical Georgia community, which is at once active and earnest. Among the other evidences of the develop ment of Augusta is the new railroad schedule which has just gone into effect. This new schedule will not only enable the public to go to the great cotton festival early and stay late, but has given the people of that city the advantage of receiving THE CONSTITU TION at an earlier hour. This is recognized as a great blessing by all except TheChronicle and we believe that even The Chronicle will finally admit that a schedule which carries THE CONSTITUTION to Augusta seven days in the week is a good thing for the city and its

How the Gold Bugs Talk. Our mild intimation to the effect that "th farmers must have relief in some shape,' causes The Albany, New York, Journal t remark that such talk is "buncombe."

The Journal asks, if the farmers mus have relief, why not the newspaper men? It characterizes our plea for the farmers as truckling to class interests. Then it proceeds to say that the farmers are the most industrious, frugal and well-to-do class o people in the country, and no more in need of relief than the newspaper men.

Of late we have had no end of this loft nonsense from the gold bugs and thei organs. They always talk in this superior and owlish fashion when the farmers kicl against unjust taxes and financial oppres

But the comparison between the farmer and the newspaper men is simply absurd The newspaper men constitute a small class bear the heaviest burdens of taxation, nor are they the backbone of the country, and the very foundation of society and government. But the farmers answer every point in this description. From the earliest time down to the present it has been remarked that no nation remained strong, and at the front, without a prosperous and contented yeomanry. To speak up for the interests of the chief producers of a country, the mer whose skill and labor have made our civilization possible, cannot in any sense b called truckling to a class. The Albany paper, and all the organs o the money rings, see no favoritism, no injustice in granting special favors to monop olists and speculators, but they take the alarm when the farmers demand hones taxes and a better financial system. These arrogant plutocrats seem to believe tha there is no wisdom outside of their ranks and they ignore the fact that farmers, from John Hampden down, have successfully fought just such financial oppression as they are now fighting. They seem to forget tha the farmers have always been a wise and beneficial element in our statesmanship.

It is all right. Let the gold bugs sne and talk. Sooner or later they will find that the farmers of today have John Hamp dens among them as of old, and that they are going to win the fight.

New Writers and Their Methods. At a time when certain writers were try ing to convince the public that there wer no more stories to be told, that every field had been worn out, and every vein exhausted, their theory was suddenly over thrown by two young men, Rider Haggard and Rudyard Kipling, who rushed to the front, and at once became all the rage. How was this remarkable success achieved? These new writers are inferior to hundred of others so far as culture is concerned, and one of them, Mr. Haggard, has a style full of faults. But they know life as it is, and they know human nature. They know that people want something out of the beater track, and so Haggard writes African stories while Kipling devotes himself to life it India. Stories linked with those strang lands may be extravagant, bizarre or mar velous, and readers will swallow them and ask for more. The writers of such stories are hampered by no rules, and they are at perfect liberty to invent their facts. What about their methods? Mr. Hagran declares that he has none. Sometimes he writes one way and sometimes another. He likes a quiet place, and works at night. His pen frequently runs away with him, and makes him change titles and plots. Mr. Kipling's experience is about the same. The two are full of energy, and work alstake of reading too much. They have read a little, and have spent the ren of their time traveling, observing, thinking and writing. They have the curiosity and enthusiasm of boys. They receive vivid impressions, and express themselves naturally and in graphic language. If they had read, say 2,000 volumes apiece, it is no likely that they would write half as well. In fact, the probability is that they would doing hack work, and would never be heard of.

Our ambitious young writers must read fewer books and better books. They must do more thinking. They must use their eyes and their ears more. Then they must profit by the example of Haggard and Kipling, and try new fields, new subjects, and scenes and characters heretofore neglected. If they are unwilling to follow this course, let them give up all hope of making fame and fortune in the ranks of the successful novelists of our time.

Baby Bonds In Virginia.

It is suggested, and the proposition mee with some favor, that in settling her debt Virginia shall issue $1,000,000 in such small bonds as may be used as currency by the

Those who favor this plan say that it wil inflate the currency, and afford immediate relief in Virginia. France, it will be recollected, raised the German indemnity by issuing small bonds, and plenty of ready money among her people soon brough about increased prosperity.

To make such a scheme of practical ben fit, many important details will have to be considered and decided upon. In some states constitutional restrictions stand in the way of thus swelling the volume of currency. but in others the experiment would doubt less be satisfactory.

Still, the people will demand something more than the baby bond scheme. They need an honest currency that will meet the wants of the country, and they are deter mined that it shall not be controlled by few money kings and the national banks. The Virginia suggestion shows that if the people cannot obtain financial relief in a regular way, they will take it in an irregu lar way. More money they must have, and more money they will have! The Beginning of the End.

There seems to be great trouble in the Shenango and Mahoning valleys of Pennsylvania. Twenty-three blast furnaces have shut down in these valleys and nearly 10,000 men have been thrown out of employment

This is a very serious state of affairs indeed, and The American Manufacturer, of Pittsburg, has been making inquiries as to the cause. It has been claimed by some of our northern contemporaries that southern competition in the manufacture of iron, as in the manufacture of cotton goods, would make no impression on northern production for years to come, if, indeed, it made any at all. Mr. Edward Atkinson has already put on record his belief that the south can never become the center of cotton manufacture, on account of climatic conditions.

And yet the owners of the furnaces which have just gone out of blast in Pennsylvania and Ohio are inclined to take a wholly different view of southern competition. They say that the reason they can't continue operations under present conditions is the large amount of southern iron that is shipped into their districts. They say that since June 1 1890, from 40,000 to 50,000 tons of this southern iron has been received in the valleys, displacing an equal amount of local production. They declare that for months a fair quality of southern iron was delivered at the Youngstown mills for $14 a ton, and large sales were made at this price. Last week the prices quoted for Alabama pig were $13.25 and $13.85 a ton.

At this point, it seems, the Pennsylvania nd Ohio furnacemen concluded to throw u their hands. The American Manufacturer thus describes the situation, and gives the reasons of the furnacemen for suspending operations:

Southern railroads virtually enter into partnership with the furnacemen by hauling material and products under the sliding scale arrangement.
Iron is hauled from Birminghen, Ala., to Youngstown, O., about 800 miles, for $10 per ton. The rate paid on pig iron from Youngstown to Pittsburg, 64 miles, is 80 cents per ton. In one case this is ½ cent a ton a mile, in the other $1.23 per ton.
In moving furnace supplies the southern roads again favor the furnacemen. Pocahontas coke is sent into the Chattanooga district at the cost of sent into the Chattanooga district at the cost of Connellsville coke in the Mahoning and Shenang which fixes freight rates according to the selling with furnaceowners. Mahoning and Shenango val-ey furnacemen hold that they should be protected ley furnacemen hold that they should be protected from southern competition by making the rate on iron from the south commensurate with that on iron going out of the valleys. The valley furnacemen say that, being situated midway between the ore and the coke supplies, they should be able to produce iron in competition with any part of the north, and would do so were they protected from southern invesds.

We presume that what is here said is true. The roads are interested in getting business, and they have to meet the competition of the water route that is now open between Ala bama and the iron region of Pennsylvania. It is significant, however, that the furnace owners and The American Manufacturer do not give the real gist of the matter. It is not the difference in freight rates, nor is it low freight rates that have compelled twentythree furnaces in the Shenango and Mahon ing valleys to go out of blast. Transports tion facilities have some bearing on the question, but the real reason lies in the fact that southern iron can be produced at prices with which the Pennsylvania and Ohio furnace cannot compete. It is not a question of capital or of experience—it seems to be purely and simply a matter of geological formation over which man has no control. In Ala bama the geological formation is such as to place the ore fields side by side with the coal and lime necessary to the manufacture of iron. These conditions are not duplicated anywhere in the world so far as we know. They exist only in the south, and the south must reap the advantages of them. This is inevitable, and the sooner the iron capitalists of the north recognize the fact, the better is

He had a great many interesting things to say about the project.

"Personally," he said, "I have been at work upon this matter for about two years, spending most of that time in Europe. I was convinced of the absolute necessity of a direct steamship line from Europe to the south. That is the best way to draw to this section the best class of German, Austrian and Norwegian emigrants. Being a German, I was particularly interested in that feature. It was impossible to get these farmers and other good immigrants south without a direct line. Landing in New York, the immigrant had no way to go but west. The transportation lines were all interested in having him go there, and the immigrants were thoroughly drilled by agents of these companies. The south was pictured to them as a land of negroes and fevers, unhealthy and inhospitable; and the west as a paraduse. Then the south, so far as immigration is concerned, is almost an untried field, and the emigrant instinctively goes as his countrymen have gone before him.

"The only way to turn the tide of European immigration southward is to establish a direct steamship line.

monthly, the steamers of 6,000 to 7,000 tons each, with a speed of twelve to thirteen miles an hour, furnished with all modern improvents, and equip and manage and operate the line upon an outlay of $2,500,000.

"The ships can be built in Germany for about half the amount they would cost if built in America, both the material and the labor being cheaper. The same ratio very nearly exists between the cost of operating with American and German crews.

"Now, to the English and German capital interested, this is an experiment. It is a new and untried thing. We have assurance of ample capital, provided we can furnish an American guarantee of 5 per cent net income on the amount actually invested.

"Of course, for the first two or three years the enterprise can hardly hope to clear 5 per cent. Say, for example, that only 3 per cent is cleared the first year. Then the remaining 2 per cent, or $20,000, must be made up in America. So the record year, we calculate, but a less amount will be required. There is no doubt, we think, that in three or four years the money will be making the per cent expected in Europe.

"Now the question is, can we secure the guarantee of 5 per cent? If so, the line will be built and put in operation just as soon as men and money can make it. I am going back to Europe about the middle of February, and if I can carry this guarantee with me, the first trip could be made within six months afterward.

the first trip contact afterward.

"We are satisfied, from personal examination and expert opinions, that Brunswick is the best southern port. The European ports will be Liverpool and Bremen—the first and second largest cotton markets in the world."

THE COMMITTEE ON BRIDGES SAYS IT WILL BE-

Mr. McBride, of That Committee, Presents Plan-Mayor Hemphill Repeats

The bridge committee of the general council will convene in special session Thursday afternoon in the mayor's office. The call was issued yesterday by Mr. Turner

The committee is composed of Mr. Turner, of the fifth ward; Mr. Rice, of the sixth ward and Mr. McBride, of the second ward, all progressive, energetic citizens.

The meeting will be the first convocation of the committee, and during the session the bridging of Forsyth street and Broad street

Every member of the committee is wedded to bridges, and the indications are that Atlanta will have two passways from the north side to the south side before the present year is Chairman Turner left the city yesterday for Albany, soon after issuing the call, but, before

"I see the absolute necessity for a bridge on Forsyth street, and shall try to mark my administration by securing one. Broad street bridge will have to be repaired, I know, and possibly rebuilt, but that should not, and shall not, interfere with the Forsyth bridge."

Mr. Rice, the second member of the committee, is heartily in accord with Mr. Turner and says the bridge over Forsyth is something Atlanta must have.

Mr. McBride, the third member of the committee, is now serving his second year in the general council, and he is more thoroughly acquainted with the situation than his col-leagues. In his connection with the fire de-partment last year, Mr. McBride said that the travel, and knows whereof he speaks when he says:

"We must have a bridge over Forsyth street, and we must have it at once. The Broke street bridge, if as stable as Virginia's celebrated natural bridge, would not hardly stand the incessant heavy traffic Atlanta throws over it. It must have relief."

"Must be given by a Forsyth street bridge. Give us a bridge over Forsyth street and it will lessen the travel over Broad street." "Have you thought of any plan for the bridge?"

"None at all. I am bridge builder but I know that we can find plenty of reliable companies which will span that gap on Forsyth street to the satisfaction "At what cost, Mr. McBride, can it be

"Again I must say I am no bridge builder but I think a bridge could be built there for from $30,000 to $40,000. It could hardly cost over $40,000. I think every member of the general council favors the bridge, and I feel safe in saying that it will be built this year. I know that every member of the bridge con wants the bridge."

What of the Broad street bridge?"

"What of the Broad street bridge?"

"If necessary, we will have to bridge that, too. But I really think we have a bridge there now which is good for twenty-five years to come."

"But it is said that the bridge—"

"Is unsafe. Yes, as it is now, it is probably unsafe. But I am informed reliably that one of the most expert bridge builders in the country and one of the best engineers say that they can make that bridge safe and good for forty years to come for $2,500 to $3,000. If they can, and I am inclined to believe they can, I am for having it repaired. However, when the committee meets Thursday all that will be considered."

Mayor Hemphill wants to see the bridge built, and thinks that its construction would be a bright jewel in the crown of his administration.

"In this way. There is now in the city a syndicate ready to enter into a contract with the city for the space between the Broad street bridge and the contemplated Forsyth street bridge and the contemplated Forsyth street bridge for a term of ten years."

"For what?"

"A trade mart, I guess you may call it. Not exactly a market house, but a mart governed by the city the same as a market. That syndicate wants the city to floor the space between the two bridges even with the bridges and then cover it. Of course they want the structure to be a good one and for it they are willing to pay, I am informed by one of Atlanta's most reliable merchants."

"How much?"

"The gentleman to whom I refer will see

"How much?"

"How much?"

"The gentleman to whom I refer will go into a contract for ten years for $30,000 a year. This will be $300,000. Now, admit that we must build a new bridge on Broad street which is now a certainty, it will cost $30,000 to $40,000; say $40,000. Then the Forsyth bridge will make $40,000 more. That's $80,000. Now $40,000 more will build the mart, making in all $120,000. For the mart the city will get $300,000 or $180,000 more than it cost us. That would save the city would it not?"

"What does the syndicate want with it?"

"The gentleman at the head of the movement says that there are a number of parties who want and will take booths or stands on the floor where they can conduct their trade. He is a reliable business man and will appear before the committee when given a chance."

Than Chief Joyner, Atlanta has no stronger advocate of a bridge on Forsyth street.

"We must have it," he says. "I want the city to build that bridge and then sell No. 1 engine house and the hook and ladder house. Then give us a central station on Alabama street. When an alarm comes in then it won't be half the present trouble to cross the railroad. According to the location of the fire we can take either bridge we want."

THE BOARD WANTS A NEW STATION

A Regular Meeting Last Night, at Which Eleven Men Are Added to the Supernumerary List-New Sergeant.

It was the subject of considerable discu at a regular meeting of the board of police

The board was unanimous in favor of selling the present building and erecting a new one. Chairman English was appointed a committee of one to bring the question before the council, and urge prompt action by that body.
At the last meeting of the council the matter was referred to the committee on public build-ngs and grounds. When the question came up before the board, Chairman English took occasion to make a few pungent remarks.

He said the present building was not only entirely incapable of meeting the require-ments of the department, but was also damaging to adjacent property, in none of which, however, he said he was interested.

The board favor selling the present station house and erecting a building in a more remote quarter of the city.

Investigating the Jail Breaking.

The board investigated the escape of the prisoners on Sunday night. It was shown that two bars had been sawed out of the top of one of the cages, and eight prisoners made their escape. Five were under charge of violation of state laws and three were in for city cases. Yesterday morning two of those who escaped came to the station house and gave themselves up. They were small negro boys, and had been arrested for violation of the city ordinances. The officers were ordered to be more strict in their searching and watching of prisoners ereafter.

BURIAL OF COLONEL HUMBER Business Suspended During the Funeral

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., January 12.- [Spe cial. |- Today was a sad one with the people of Milledgeville, the tidings of Colonel Humber's death being like a pall over the city. At 4 o'clock this evening business was partially suspended, and a great crowd gathered at the family residence on Hancock street, where the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Seals, of Putnam county. Sweet tunes, were rendered by the Methodist choir, with touching effect. The floral tributes, under which the casket was literally buried, were beautiful tokens of the love in which he in by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, he being a member of that organization, and the first male member elected here tion, and the first male member elected here. The college cadets escorted the corpse to the tomb, and the college trustees and citizens generally made up the long procession that marched in sorrow to the last sad scenes.

A conspicuous figure attending the solemn services was an old negro who had known and loved the distinguished dead through his noble career. He was coming from Macon this morning to Haddeck's station, when he heard the news of Colonel Humber's death, at which he wept as though his heart would break. He came on to the city to witness the last sad rites, and when darkness had covered the earth, this simple old soul still lingered at the tomb, wiped the tears from his eyes, and with a thoughtful, gloomy countenance turned his face from his friend forever. The scene was a touching one; it was the silent tribute of a simple and devoted heart to a sublime and noble life.

DEATH FROM SMALLPOX, A Case Contracted in Savannah Ends Fatally

in Hardeeville.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 12.—Albert Jones, who was reported by the state board of health as having a case of smallpox at Hardeeville, in Colleton county, died from the effects of the disease on Sunday evening. Jones was a foreman on the Charleston and Savannah railway. It is supposed that he contracted the disease while at work on a Spanish bark, which was unloading at Savannah. Jones left Savannah to go to Hardeeville to work on the engine, which was at work on the Savannah river trestle. While at work at Hardeeville the disease broke out, and Jones was sick for about a week. Dr. Frazer pronounced it a case of smallpox. Upon the request of the state board of health, Governor Tillman appointed Dr. Howard as inspector of the case. No other cases have been reported at Hardeeville. Mr. Jones was so completely isolated, and such strict precautionary measures were adopted, that there is no fear of the disease having been contracted by any one.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, January 12.—The stock market was quite active today, and furnished more excitement than on any day since the great break in November and, while the firm tendency of prices was upward there was a natural reaction toward the close. Con sidering the material advance which the market has had since the first of the year, which has been practi had since the first of the year, which has been practi-cally without a set back of any kind, there was a wide-spread sentiment that a reaction was in order and to-day it came, the bulls seeming rather to favor it than oppose it, probably under the idea that it would bring in fresh buying and give increased breadth to the market. Dealings in the general list, however, were completely overshadowed by those in Sugar Refineries, which were given a jump upon the short interlor for completely overshadowed by those in Sugar Refineries, which were given a jump upon the short interior for completion of reorganization and prospective payment of 5 per cent in eash, which is called deferred dividend. There were extremely large and excited crowds gathered in the Stock Exchange this morning, and at the sound of the gavel a seene of the wildest excitement ensued, large orders having been placed in the market to buy, while shorts fairly climbed over each other to recount their contracts. This stock had the market to buy, while shorts fairly climbed over each other to recoup their contracts. This stock had closed Saturday at 70%, and the first sale recorded this morning was at 74, while higher quotations were made on different sides of the crowd. At the same time the and was so great, however, that 8116 was reached and was satisfied and the price they reacted to 78, where it was maintained for the rest of reacted to 78, where it was maintained for the rest of the day. In the general list there was the same taking of profits, which in the afternoon forced the list off, and while there were a few specially strong spots, as Chicago, Gas, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and silver certificates, Grangers were weak, Atchison and Rock Island in particular and Lackawanna also tailed behind the rest of the list. Early gains were all wiped out through a spurt in Chicago (ass in the afternoon on rumors of a new bull pool in stock, and also an aprobable decignation of dividend. A rise of garly of per cent was scored, but realization afterward wiped out the greater portion of this improvement. Silver certificates were more active than for a long time and decidedly strong advices from Washington giving encouragement to those who are hoping for a wider use of metal. The general list presented no special feature whatever, but slowly sagged of during the afternoon and the market finally closed active but heavy at or near the lowest prices of the day and only slightly changed from the finals of Saturday. NEW YORK, January 12.—At the opening of the exchange the largest crowd was centered in sugar stocks. The fact that the organization was assured led to a very confident feeling, and every broker in the crowd seemed to have a buying order. The stock went up ten points over Saturday's closing and held the greater part of the advance. The bullish feeling was worked up over Sunday, and the orders to buy the general list coupled with a boom, but the new-comers were supplied with a liberal hand, and were given all the stock they wanted. The failure of an active trader, who was short, also increased the demand. The most serious feature in the financial situation is the silver bill. The senate will vote on the measure Wednesday, and probably pass it. This will lead to renewed talk about this question, and it will no doubt have a marked effect on this market and kill the European demand for our stocks. As regards the railroad agreement, time will show whether these different contending interests can agree on a fair division of tariff. This will be found a difficult task. The market sold off at close, and the demand was fully supplied.

NEW YORK, January 12.—[Special.]—A decline of 3-64 in Liverpool surprised trade this morning. This market followed with a drop of 6 points under the pressure of fereign selling orders. Our cables advise that the decline was due to the heavy movement of Saturday, and the consensus of opinions expressed is that the foreign markets have done their best for the present unless the receipts fall below last year. The receipts at the ports today were lighter than the estimates, and the market slowly recovered, closing dull but steady on a small business. Estimates of receipts tomorrow point to a total of 49,000 bales, but operators are waiting to see if the buying demand in receipts tomorrow point to a total of 40,000 bales, but operators are waiting to see if the buying demand in Liverpool has stopped, or only halted, and they will not enter into fresh engagements until that point is decided. The trade expect Liverpool to be from 34 4-44 better tomorrow, and have prepared themselves for such an advance. Our stock is increasing apidly, being now 81,800 bales in warehouse with every probability of its ultimately reaching nearly 200,000 bales.

NEW YORK, January 12.—Liverpool came easier this morning, showing a decline of 3&4-64d, though the sales on the spot there continue very liberal. Prices here were 6&7 points lower, and there was slight change until late in the day, when the receipts came in; and, proving lighter than had been expected, values slowly improved, closing steady at nearly top prices after a nery moderate business. There are messages here attributing the light receipts to unfavorable when, otherwise there is nothing new in the situation worthy of note.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, January 12 .- The wheat market opened the close of Saturday's session. The price of May wheat touched a figure only 14c above the lowest point

The corn crowd were evidently impressed with a belief in the government figures being an argument for higher prices to judge from the starting figures, May delivery opening at from 53\(\pi_0653\)\(\pi_c\), against 53\(\pi_0\) at the closing on Saturday. The opening prices could not be obtained at any time during the day. Fluctuations followed the course of the wheat market, and the closing transactions were near the lowest prices of the sec-

The provision market was active and weak. There were some buying orders near the start, which were freely supplied by manufacturers of the product.

The possibility of that being true, we think, would be quite sufficient to prevent any very large lines on the short side. GROWING CORN.

RESULTS OF THE WORK AT THE

Does Nitrogen Improve a Corn Crop?-If Not, Cotton Seed Is Wasted on a Cornfield.

During the past year, the Georgia experiment station, under the direction of Colonel R. J. Redding, has made some interesting experiments to determine the effects of nitrogenous fertilizers on corn, and the results are embodied in a bulletin which has just been sent out.

In his introductory remarks Colonel Redding observes that the three elements of plant food, not generally found in the soil, are phosphoric acid, potash and nitrogen. The first two are mineral elements to be derived from the earth and not from the air. As soils vary, the quantity of phosphoric acid and potash contained in them, and the amount which must be supplied vary. But nitrogen exists in the air as rell as in the soil, and as there is no poor air, the atmospheric contingent of nitrogen is always on hand. There are certain plants like clover, cow peas, beans, peanuts, vetches, tares and lespedezas, which gather their supply of nitrogen principally from the air, thus thriving where other crops cannot for want of nitrogen in the soil.

Coin has generally been classed with cotton, wheat, cats and those crops which depend on the soil for their nitrogen, but of late there has been a contention that corn can, like cow peas and clover, take its nitrogen from the air, and that an application of nitrogenous ma-mires to this crop is an absolute waste.

When it is remembered that millions of dollars worth of cotton seed is put on the cornfields of the south every year to give the plant nitrogen and nothing else it will be seen that the question is one of immense importance. For if the cotton seed may as well be left out of the cornfields, that much may be sold for an immense amount of money, or used in other crops where it is absolutely needed and will bring a large return.

Colonel Redding thinks it is proven by his experiments that nitrogen increases the yield of corn, and that in proper quantities its application is profitable.

These experiments cannot be considered conclusive, for the soil was not all of the same quality, as was shown by the variation of the unfertilized crops from 12.7 to 29.6 bushels per

Still they are instructive, and of especial value, because they show how thoroughly and patiently we must investigate if we would get at nature's secrets. She seems hold them in reserve as especial rewards for the diligent. For example, these experiments show that while the nitrogenous constituent is good in certain quantities, the same quantity is more available in some combinations than in others. Thus sulphate of ammonia containing 25½ pounds of nitrogen placed with phosphoric acid and potash, made 28.8 bushels, while cotton seed containing 26 pounds of nitrogen, placed with the same proportion of phosphoric acid and potash made 22.3 bushels. In the second experiment the results were respectively 29 and 26.3 bushels. In the first experiment, when the quantity of ammonia was doubled, the yield fell from 28.3 to 21.4 bushels. In the second fell from 28.8 to 21.4 bushels. In the second instance double ration cut the yield down from 29 to 21.6 bushels. With cotton seed meal in the first experiment, the double ration increased the yield one bushel, while in the second, it decreased it a bushel and a half. That is to say, in three cases out of four, the double ration of nitrogen decreased the yield. From this it may be fairly inferred that on the soil of the experiment station 25 pounds of nitrogen is very near the quantity which pays best.

But this conclusion is not entirely established, for in another place very close to the others 42½ pounds of nitrogen in the form of nitrate of soda, placed with the same mixed minerals (potash and lished, for in another place very close to the others 42½ pounds of nitrogen in the form of nitrate of soda, placed with the same mixed minerals (potash and phosphoric acid), increased the yield of corn to 86 bushels. But as 21½ pounds of nitrogen in the same form had on the adjoining plot produced 34 bushels of corn, we may fairly conclude that not all of the 42½ pounds was utilized in the other case. We are pretty safe, therefore, in concluding that 25 to 30 pounds of nitrogen is the proper quantity to be used with phosphate and potash on that character of soil. It is interesting to note that the largest crop (36 bushels) was made from nitrogen in the form of nitrate of soda, placed with the same two minerals which accompanied the nitrogen when it was supplied in the forms of ammonia and cotton seed mea. But in the second experiment, nitrogen in the form of ammonia made the largest crop. But in the second experiment, phosphoric acid and potash made more corn without any form of nitrogen than with it. There is an apparent contradition which must be due to a difference in soils.

A remarkable feature was the total waste of the nitrogen in the form of stable manure, enough of which was put on to supply 60 pounds of nitrogen -per acre. This required 8,000 pounds of manure. Not only did it fail to produce corn, but made no grass, which grew luxuriantly wherever the other nitrogenous manures were applied.

An interesting feature of the experiments was that wherever muriate of potash was applied by itself the crop was considerably decreased below that of the unfertilized plots.

The sub-soil experiment shows in twenty-five comparisons an average increase of one bushel per acre. It also shows more sinucks and fewer blighted ears. In some instances subsolling makes the ground hold more, so to speak, and the idea suggests itself that the second or third year it would make a better showing.

Colonel Redding's notes on the experiments are as follows:

NOTES ON EXPERIMENT I.

The results were somewhat unexpected, and not altogether satisfactory, and they must, by no means, be accepted as conclusive. I. The land was not sufficiently uniforn to yield decisive results. 2. The scasons were on the whole rather unfavorable to the just and equal effect of all fertulares. 3. The bud worms were unusually desiructive. Notes were taken of the appearance and promise of each plot on May 3d, May 18th. June 2d, June 18th and July 2d, couched in usual farmers' style, as "Plot 2, healthy, good stand." "Plot 4, equal to plot 3." "Plot 24, 50 per cent better than any," etc. On this point it is sufficient to say, that in many cases the final test, by actually weighing the yield, showed results which were widely different from the judgment based on appearances. For instance, to plot No. 24 mixed minerals and stable manure, at each inspection is appended the note, "50 per cent better than any preceding 11.5t," and yet the final result, as per weighed corn, shows that this plot actually yielded less than any other fertilized plots, to-wit: Plot 26, which was adjacent to it.

Preliminary Group.—Plots Nos. 1 to 7, inclusive may be called preliminary, embracing seven plots one not fertilized, and each of the introgenous ingredients produced a marked increase in the yield; anperphosphate alone gave a material increase, while the muriate of potash actually as good at teat in plot 1.

Double Mixture Group.—Plots 8, 9, each having intrate of soda show a still more decided in-decrease. (The land in pro-tation plot 1.)

Bouble Mixture Group.—Plots 8, 9, each having Double Mixture Group.—still more decided in-Double Mixture Group.—Plots 8, 9, each having bitrate of soda, show a still more decided increase; plot 10, superphosphate and potash, or "mixed minerals," somewhat less.

Nitrate Group.—On plots 11, 12 and 13 we have the "mixed minerals," combined with nitrate optoda in three proportions, the best results appearing where a double ration of the latter was used. In plot 14 mixed minerals alone occur and shows about the same result as plot 10 (also mixed minerals), followed by 15, unfertilized, which indicates a progressive improvement in the unadded capacity of the soil since leaving plot 1. From this plot the soil gradually diminishes in capacity to plot 25, as is observable by inspection of the land, the surface ascending and becoming harder and more clayey.

Sulphate of Ammonia Group.—The result on lots 16 to 18 are not so marked as in the preceding froup, and seem to indicate that this sait is not so clable an ammoniste as nitrate of soda. The tand was unusually defective, and the plants were remarkably yellow and unhealthy until after the 16th.

able results, as already stated. The corn was apparently much better—"50 per cent better," as the notes express it—than any other plot up to July 2d. At that time the section, as well as the whole farm, was suffering from intense heat and drought, and this plot more than any. The blades were then firing, and continued to fire until the process reached the ears. The result was a lower yield than any other fertilized plot. This result is opposed to what is supposed to be general experience, viz.: That corn fertilized with stable manure compost will stand a severe drought better than where concentrated fertilizers are used.

A Remarkable Result.—After cultivation ceased and the weather became seasonable, the spontaneous growth of crab grass (Panicum sanguinale) on the several plots presented the following appearance: On the unfertilized plots, and on those which received no nitrogenous fertilizer, the growth of grass was a minimum, not enough to mow with a soythe blade, at its best—in fact, not thick enough to "burn off" at this writing (December 20th); the surface was almost bare of vegetation, other than the corn. On the plots fertilized with nitrate, sulphate, dried blood and cotton seed meal, the grass was yery inxuriant, fully waist high, and thicker in proportion as the dose of nitrogen was greater. But the most surprising result was the fact that the plot which had received the "inixed minerals" and 8,000 pounds of stable manure was as bare of grass as either the unfertilized plots or those fertilized with "mixed minerals" only. The dividing lines between the raik, inxuriant grass plots and those that were almost as bare as the hand, were almost as straight and well defined as a corn row itself. Hay was made from some of these plots at the rate of probably not iess than one ton per acre.

What does this after effect on the growth of grass signify?

I will recur to this in the "conclusions" under experiments 1 and 2.

I will recur to this in the "conclusions" under experiments 1 and 2.

NOTES ON EXPERIMENT 2.

As already noted, this experiment was a duplicate in object and detail of experiment 2, but projected on land of rather lighter character, and containing more vegetable matter.

The notes on experiment 1 illustrate the method of studying the results. It is but simple candor to say that the results on this plot do not fully sustain the partial conclusions based on experiment 1. It should be noted that the soil of plot 1 in this experiment is much better than the soil on the other parts of the section, and this better quality continues, but gradually diminishing, to about plot 8. The north half of plot 5 was injured seriously by a wash, or gully.

Subsoiling.—An incidental feature was to ascertain the effect of subsoiling. For this purpose the plot was divided by a line drawn through the middle—across the rows. The south half was subsoiled with a two-horse subsoil plow to the depth of ten inches. In all other respects the preparation was identical with that of the north half. The result shows the average yield of the subsoiled half to have been 25.08 bushels of shelled ourn per acre, and of the unsubsoiled half 24.19 bushels, a difference in favor of subsoiling of 0.89 bushels per acre, or a little more than 3½ pecks.

1. That the nitrogenous fertilizers increase the yield of corn materially.

2. That nitrate of sods is better for corn than either sulphate of amnonia, cotton seed meal, dried blood, or stable manure.

3. That it is easy to apply too much nitrogen to corn.

corn.

4. That nitrogen, in moderate quantity, combined with phosphoric acid and potash, is better than when used alone, on corn.

5. That superphosphate does not give satisfactory results when used alone on corn.

6. That it is not advisable to apply potash alone on corn.

on corn.
7. That the mixed minerals—superphosphate and potash—combined with a moderate dose of 7. That the mixed minerals—superphosphate and potash—combined with a moderate dose of nitrate of soda, give the best results.

8. The greater inxuriance of the grass on the nitrogenized plots, the luxuriance increasing as the quantity of nitrogen was greater, suggests that there was more nitrogen than the corn crop could take up and appropriate. How otherwise can the result be explained? The failure of the volunteer crop of grass in the stable manure plot can the result be explained? The failure of the volunteer crop of grass in the stable manure plot is inexplicable except on the hypothesis that the organic nitrogen of the stable manure was more assimilable and consequently more completely removed from the soil than the nitrogen of the dried blood, the nitric acid of the nitrate of soda, or the ammonia of the sulphate. But what became of it; it did not increase the yield of corn?

The above are not to be accepted as conclusive, but as significant and suggestive only. Such experiments must be repeatedly made on different soils and in different sections of the country. They are, however, worthy of careful study and will be helpful in practice.

Meeting of the Committee on Improving the Capitol Grounds—Preparing for the Mil-itary Encampment—Contests.

The commission appointed by the last legislature to take charge of the improvement of the capitol grounds, held its first meeting in the governor's office yesterday morning.

The committee consists of Governor Northen, Comptroller General Wright, Treasurer Hardeman, Commissioner of Agriculture Nesbitt, Hon. R. G. Mitchell, president of the senate, and Hon. Clark Howell, speaker of the house. Ail the members of the compresent except Colonel Mitchell. Governor Northen was made chairman the commission. After an informal discussion of the work the commission has in hand, Mr. Howell moved that Treasurer Hardeman, Comptroller General Wright and Commissioner Nesbitt be appointed a subcommittee to ascertrin just what is to be done. The motion was carried. This subcommittee is to consider the whole matter of needed improvements to the grounds and the different plans of beautifying them, and will report, with recommendations, to the commis-

Governor Northen was at his office in the capitol yesterday for the first time in several days—the second time since the grip laid hold of him about two weeks ago.

The call for the advisory board meeting has not been issued yet, but it is understood that the date has been changed from the 21st of January to the 22d.

Speaking of the permanent site for the annual encampment of the militia, Adjutant General Kell said yesterday:

"That is one of the most important matters to be considered at the next meeting of the advisory board. It is probable that bids will be asked for from the various cities and towns interested in securing the site, and perhaps a committee will be appointed to visit the vari-ous places proposed. The bids will then be acted upon at the next meeting of the board, and the committee will be in position to fur-nish the board with all the information needed for making a proper selection."

Another matter to come up at that meeting of the advisory board, and in which great local interest is felt, is the application of the Grady Cadets for admission to the state force.

It is thought that there will be no opposition whatever to the admission of the Gradys This is one of the best armed and equipped and best officered companies in the state. The company would be an ornament and an honor to the state militia.

NOBLE WOMEN'S WORK

THE INDUSTRIAL UNION HOLDS AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

There Will Be Great Additions Made to the hool for the Poor—The Home for the Friendless Flourishing.

The Woman's Industrial Union held its first regular monthly meeting of the new year yesterday,

A large representation of the faithful Christian women of Atlanta gathered in the ladies' reading room of the Young Men's Library, and when the meeting was called to order by the president business was taken up in earnest. The reports of the officers were heard with much interest, and the members evinced much enthusiasm over the success of the union as indicated by the reports. They showed that the year just passed has been one of prosperity for the organization, and that much good has resulted from the untiring and zealous work of the noble women with the cause of this club at heart. THE SCHOOL PROSPERS. Especially was the report of the chool committee an interesting one, and one of which the Woman's Industrial Union should feel justly proud. The report showed that the school has in attendance now sixty-one pupils, and that applications for tuition have to be refused eluctantly each day from the lack of con veniences. There was much satisfaction manifested at the very great work this school, sustained totally by the efforts and charity of the union is doing.

TO BE ENLARGED. It will be enlarged.

In the report of the school com-mittee it was recommended that another teacher be engaged, and an additional room be added to the school building on Ivy street.

Efforts will be made to secure the enlarge nents necessary.

The meeting discussed the matter somewhat at length vesterday, and finally decided to instruct the school committee to investigate the matter and take such steps as they may see fit to procure the advantages recommended.

This committee is composed of Mrs. R. M. Clayton, Mrs. A. E. Buck, Mrs. Livingston Mims, Mrs. H. E. McCabe, Mrs. M. Fitzgerald and Mrs. G. Winship. All of these ladies are zealous in the work of increasing the facilities of the school and something is sure to result from their labors in this direction.

HOME FOR THE FRIENDLESS. Mrs Ida Graves, the excellent matron of the Home for the Friendless, was highly complimented for the success of that institution by the Industrial Union yesterday.

There are few, if there are any, institutions of charity in Atianta that are doing more good work for the helpless than the Home for the Friendless.

If you decide To take Hood's Sarsaparilla, Do not buy any substitute. Get only Hood's.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Peetoral, and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confidence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disap-

"A short time ago, I was taken with a severe attack of bronchitis. The remedies ordinarily used in such cases failed to give me relief. Almost in despair of ever finding anything to cure me, I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was helped from the first dose. I had not finished one bottle before the disease left me, and my throat and lungs were as sound as ever."—
